that. They don't want competition. I have read where certain broadcasters have filed protests against the granting of additional licenses in their area even though there'd be no overlapping of the bands or their signals. They just didn't want the competition. So they are as cut-throat, as gouging as any other business. And like Jonathan Winters said when I told you all the other day, he said as much as businessmen lie, cheat and steal, they pay taxes; not all of them. They don't want to pay them. And I'm not going to say the business persons that Senator Kristensen is trying to help are lying, cheating, or stealing. I just do not know. And when you don't know something, you can't say one way or the other. But if they are doing that, that's not why he wants to help them. Senator Kristensen is a kindhearted young gentleman, and I just have to be a hardhearted old scrooge this evening. As Senator Suttle pointed out, sales tax cut for everybody or sales tax cut for nobody. And this session is not the one to grant a cut for these people. How do you think the public would react if they knew what we're doing here for these while being aware of what we're not doing for others who could really benefit? Now you couldn't say, to go back to the example I gave, that anybody who buys from the Goodwill will not have to pay a sales tax if they buy there because they are people of means...

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...who purchase from the Goodwill and these other places. There would have to be some way to key it to the individual, which they're not going to do and it might be very difficult to do that. But they might say any clothing below a certain amount will be tax-free, but they're not going to do that either. So I'm going to vote against Senator Wickersham's amendment, sorry, "Mr. Wizard," and I'm going to follow Senator Suttle's sage advice and also vote against the bill, which is what I was going to do anyway but she helped further entrench that determination.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Vrtiska.

SENATOR VRTISKA: Thank you, Mr. Lieutenant Governor. I just wanted to let Senator Kristensen know that in the debate the
